Suppose I have a function like this: function someFunction(myObj) { // some logic if (condition) { myObj.someProp = "someValue"; } } Is this possible to conditionally assign a property in an object? Suppose I have a function like this: function someFunction(myObj) { // some logic if (condition) { myObj.someProp = "someValue"; } } Yes, it is possible. The conditional can be inside the function. It will look something like this. Cristiano Ronaldo will have two training sessions in Manchester club, The Real Madrid No.7 is on the verge of completing a world record move away from his current club and his first outing in the English Premier League will be a Red Devils one. The 32-year-old played in United's 2-2 draw with Aston Villa last weekend and has been working on building-up the stamina after his hectic schedule. Having been the best player in the world for a couple of years now, it could be said Cristiano Ronaldo image and to bring in Gareth Bale as another attacking option now has changed the Portuguese's mentality. Ronaldo himself admitted as much when he said he felt "completely free" of the Old Lady.
