The following are a few of the ways FIFA HyperMotion Technology impacts gameplay in FIFA 22: Improved Interceptions and Turnovers The improved passing options and ball control have already seen a noticeable improvement in my gameplay. How can I turn it into a tactical advantage? Ability to use the ball more quickly and correctly. Take the goalkeeper out of the equation and replace him with a sentient lobbing machine. It's a bit unnatural but still a smart strategy. Small ball mastery. No longer will you be penalized for holding onto the ball for too long. Or for throwing it toward your own goal in an attempt to find an open teammate. Improved momentum changes. You can now change the ball direction with a spin pass or a fancy foot pass. The latter is particularly useful when the two opponent attackers are dueling near the goal line. Offside-based ref-assisted player movement. After the player receives the ball, the offside call is revealed. If he is about to attempt a pass, he is no longer able to carry on with the play, even if the player is outside of the box. On the other hand, if you want to dribble the ball into space and bring out the cross, you can do so knowing the on-ball ref will be annoyed with your tactics. Shorter Receiving Chances You can start each match with a precise tactical overview on the pitch and a real-time situation view that highlights the enemy's positioning (the pitch even flares to show you the team positions before the first pass). How can I use this advantage? Not only will it become more difficult to complete the first-time pass in a high-intensity gameplay situation, but it will be more difficult to beat the pressing defender and find an opening. Improved shot and set-piece chances. With the digital perfection that is AI-based, goalkeepers are like a free diving robot that you can send down from the top of the stadium. The AI now moves according to the goalkeeper's positioning, which is based on where the ball last touched the grass. Also, taking a low-risk, unguarded set piece is now a viable tactical option. The US military has launched a cyberattack on Iranian computers in a bid to disrupt the regime's banking and communication networks, a senior source tells Mashable. The "Operation Ababil" was launched in an effort to disrupt computer networks that are used to filter and censor internet and traditional communications networks. The US cyberattack on Iran comes as the Obama administration looks for ways to respond to the ongoing demonstrations in the region. Visit Business Insider's homepage for more stories. The US military carried out a cyberattack on Iran to disrupt the regime's computer networks on Friday, according to a senior military source. Officials say the operation, called Ababil and codenamed "Operation Ababil," was launched in response to Iran's crackdown on political protests and targeting of US personnel in the region, which has been ongoing since November 20. Before the launch of the operation, the goal was to cripple a network used to censor the internet and traditional communication networks. That operation, codenamed "Olympic Games," was launched by the US military on Thursday. "The objective of Olympic Games was to disrupt the Iranian ability to censor the internet and disrupt the Iranian ability to block satellite TV," military source told Mashable. The two operations, which were not classified, were "an evolution of the cyber campaign we've been conducting against them since the start of the uprising." However, with Olympic Games' success, it meant the US military was on the path to disabling the "Guardian" a network that filters and censors the internet used by Iran's

What's new in Fifa 22:

- EA.com and click the "Pre-order & Save Big >. FIFA 22 was unannounced at gamescom earlier this year. We hope to have FIFA 22 release date in a couple of weeks. But snppro.com already have FIFA 22 release date. FIFA 22 release date in November 22. But FIFA 20 is November 14, twenty-one out of two in that year, the new year have eight days( Nov. 02 -22), they have more days in that year than last year. So we expect that FIFA 22 will not release on October 29. I think we're more correct.
- Player Career will be more interesting and better.I really don't care that FIFA 21 is better than FIFA 19 and FIFA 20. EA should not use the same data of in FIFA 21. I think that FIFA 22 game will be much better than FIFA 21 game, I think it's better than Fifa 20. If FIFA 2022 send the data to Player Career, we can know more about its player character from the data.
