Your family has yet to set foot in the family court, so there are no children to care for, no parties to avoid, no domestic violence cases to deal with. You could binge-watch a series on Netflix. After a decade of practicing at a firm that included one of the area's top family law attorneys, I'm now on my own. So I've been spending a lot of my free time with legal research and other reading material — all essential to a small firm with limited resources. I'm a voracious reader — an addiction that even a full-time law professor hasn't been able to break. But I've also noticed a change in my reading habits that I'd never encountered before: I'm more drawn to nonfiction material than ever before, and my go-to reading material has shifted from traditional nonfiction to business and science books. This isn't exactly a surprise, considering that I've always leaned toward the serious side of the law. But unlike books about international relations or trial law, I have yet to pick up a book about office politics or hiring practices. Instead, I've been drawn to everything from Founders

Maybe they were supposed to do the web browser by themselves. ~~~~ jdbernard I believe when I was using ChromiumOS it was the proposed replacement for NaCIOS. Around the time of ChromeOS (prior to ChromeOS) when I was researching ChromiumOS I was getting pretty confused about what was happening. It really seems like they tried and failed at everything. I don't think they'll recover from it. ----- intrasight No new work has been done on it in any of the public releases since 2012. Anyone thinking about using a Chromebook? ~~~~ xdaiswhenthisstarted I assume you are talking about the Chromium OS. There is a community maintained fork with
