Join our community: Ellis the Actor is a silly animated game with a bold fun concept. Your goal is to play a game of poker with an actor. If you manage to knock out your opponent, the game goes back to the beginning and you have to start over. If not, you win in a round of poker. All the cards in the deck are made of fun and colorful objects. Ellis the Actor is the sequel to Ellis the Artist that left me breathless. In this one you get to go on a journey with your otter friend Treor against ancient evil. The graphics are gorgeous and make use of an almost alien sense of style. I really like the loud and funny music and the funny plot of the game. This is a perfect game to play while relaxing or after a hard day at work. Grab your friends and have some fun! It's the best game I played all year 2018. Watch some more awesome videos from the gaming industry here on our channel:

What's new in City Monsters:

The final chapter in the Council is here; the council itself. This series will be split up, and parts released in different releases, so the content may take several months to complete in entirety. This episode is being released in two parts: the first half will be released tomorrow. Many of you have been following us on twitter, and had announcements about progress on the episode. I'll announce a date soon, and it'll be a few weeks of content, so keep your eye on the council posts. To get caught up, you can read our previous article and discussion here. Board Evaluation Part 2: As we continue to work towards the fullest Council of All Things, the board evaluation articles continue with a third part. This is the most controversial article I've written, or probably will write. The vote is still in play (results announced in a few days). (Spoiler: It's a draw - going to continue a few more months in an attempt to make a decision based on deeper reasoning rather than fury. Everyone can pick their side.) Spoiler: Spoiler: Our first board evaluation article took a look at weapons and armor, first with things we've seen in game so far. In this article, we'll take a look at three categories of equipment; food and drinks (for agriculturalists), tools and machinery (for industrialists) and medicines (for healers). As with the first article, we will discuss reasons for the ranking and overall plans with the hope of developing a more holistic, diverse and deeper approach to making equipment in War for the Atlas. Food and Drinks My own personal ranking system for food and drinks is listed in the article. It is based on things that we learn about the world. Something with poor sustainability, is very limited in its uses, or simply not tested or tried (though after a few months testing, I'm sure that there will be a list of things to try.) The ranking and scoring is what is repeated now, the reasoning and subsequent policies is what is new. Here are the rankings, and the stats are from my Archon match (lowest team on Archon as of this article: Omega Team). Food: Drinks: Tools and Machinery Medicine Here
