While most of our knowledge on coral reef destruction stems from the Caribbean and Indo-Pacific oceans, similar destruction is happening in the Southern Hemisphere, as well. Like the Caribbean reef, the Great Barrier Reef in Australia is one of the most significant ecosystems remaining in the world, with the recent climate change that's occurring as well as some of the pollution that's being dumped into the oceans. I have been making a conscious decision to try and make the best use of my limited free time so that I can create as much as possible, and these posts and art making are about the main ways that I am finding to share this information with the world, but I do have an online print shop where I am selling my prints for anyone who wants them, no matter what time of day. All of my printed copies will be signed and shipped in a light padded envelope. If you are interested in being a part of the print community and checking out my prints that I am selling, you can head on over to this link. Friday, July 20, 2011 I finally finished up the work on my sculpture that I started back in January. It's a monument to our space and time here at the colony, because we like to remind ourselves that we're just a part of a whole system, just like the coral reefs. It's a low tech piece and it's hard to explain how it works, but basically each shard of coral that you see coming out the top is a different timeframe for the projected past. Here's a drawing of what I've got so far on my sculpture, I'm hoping to have it done for the festival this fall or sometime next winter.Video shows Las Vegas Police Clubmember on Shooting Range Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department radio transmissions have released a two-minute video of a 2012 range training session. During the NFL meeting, he made a statement that he was a "big believer" in the "sacred responsibility" of the national anthem, but he was visibly frustrated when he was asked to comment on the players' demands to have more money during their "sacred" moment. A reporter asked Goodell, "Will the players who are protesting during the anthem ever get back on the field? "We're just trying to ask whether or not you believe that if the players want the conditions — the compensation — to be changed, that you will change it?" The NFL commissioner responded, "I am a big believer of the fact that our players should stand for the national anthem. And I think that the vast majority of them understand and respect that. "I think the NFL has been a great steward of the national anthem. "So I'm going to continue to support our players, not take a position on it, other than to say I think our players should stand and they should respect the flag and the national anthem and everything it represents, and the great history of this country.” The reporter tried to press the issue by asking, “I’m asking, if players want to be paid more, will you give it to them?” “Roger, that”
