As the list of companies capable of downloading viruses shortens, the list of companies that provide business software for consumers grows ever longer. In many cases, the included software is more expensive than the consumer version of the same software. A Financial Times article says that when Apple released the iPhone 4 in 2009, it was shipping with a free antivirus software called MobileSOS Security. By the end of 2012, the company sold 17 million of the phones. Apple is offering its own virus-detecting security software called App Store Security, free of charge, in the App Store. A free version of iWork is not currently available in the App Store. iCloud is free, while the storage capacity is limited to 25 gigabytes.
